PART II.

A Selection of Valuable Coins from the Stenz Collection.

- 339 CHARLES I. Pound piece. 1642. A small figure of the King on horseback, very little ground under the horse, the plume higher in the area than the King's head: rev. in two straight lines RELIG. PROT. LEG. ANG. LIBER. PAR; date below: usual motto around, XX and three Welch plumes above the legend. Very fine. Angel line
- 340 — Pound piece of 1642; obv. the King on a larger and finer horse, his dress and the caparisons more rich, the plume on a line with his sash; heaps of armor beneath the horse; rev. nearly the same as last. Still finer than before. Hebman
- 341 — Pound piece of 1643. In all but base like one last described; it also differs slightly in the division of the legend. Fully equal to last. Angel line
- 342 — Pound piece of 1644. Obv. similar to last; rev. the legend in three curving lines on a sheet; below, date and OX. Fine and rare to excess. Angel line
- It is hardly necessary to refer to the rarity of these XX. shilling pieces, but that the four varieties, as described and engraved by Snelling, should be found in the same collection is certainly remarkable. The old German labels show that the set has been together a long time.
- 343 CROMWELL. Crown struck in tin; edge plain. Very fine and rare.
- 344 — Small oval medallion, without reverse. Cromwell's bust, with inscription commemorating the Battle of Dunbar, THE LORD OF HOSTS, etc., with "Simon" on the edge of the arms; size about 13 x 18. Unique and very fine. Silver.
